The New Animal Welfare Chapter

- * Consolidates the animal welfare requirements in one chapter
- * Slaughter plants design, implement and monitor the delivery of their own animal welfare program.
- * Outcome based, not prescriptive
Eg. Establishments must implement a maintenance program, but the program does not prescribe how it has to be done.
- * There are some prescriptive components.
Eg. Beating of animals, or dragging conscious non-ambulatory animals are prohibited.

The New Animal Welfare Chapter

- * The CFIA will verify that the establishment's animal welfare program is:
 - compliant with national standards
 - implemented
 - effective.
 Using CVS (Compliance Verification System Tasks)
- * The procedure applies to all species.

Performance Standards

Based on Temple Grandin:

- *Grandin's objectives fit well with the new animal welfare chapter
- *Emphasizes having an organized plan
- *Monitor the effectiveness of the delivery of the plan

Fits with current industry practices:

- *Many plants already perform third party internal animal welfare audits
- *The new chapter will mesh well with these existing activities

Training Material and Training

- *Animal welfare training material is being developed
- * Includes material provided by industry
- * It is our plan to make training material available to those in industry who want it

Input

- * Input was obtained from red meat and poultry plants, CFIA field staff and Program staff as well as academia
- * The objective was to make the program compatible with existing good Meat Industry practices.
- * To foster an atmosphere of continuous improvement and innovation
